

WELCOME

Me? A wine virtuoso? Don't think so. I'm rather an apprentice despite my 18 years of intense wine passion. But I kinda like the name - Wine Virtuosity. I'm glad you found my site, a merge of my two previous blogs. My name is Niklas Jorgensen. Here you will find it all; classic wine regions, new discoveries and some wine mumbo jumbo in general. I don't care about a wine's origin; as long as it captures my attention no more is needed. Trying to act as unprejudiced as possible, I still am aware of which are my weak spots. At least at the moment because who knows what awaits around the corner? By the way; don't forget to check out my Madeira wine site as well!

Monday, June 27, 2011

2010 Weissleiten, Gemischter Satz, Stefan Hajszan, Wien, EUR 10,80, US here, (88-89 p)

Yup. It tastes just as good at home as in Wien. I'm in love with the Weissleiten Gemischter Satz. The freshness, the clean taste and the mineral driven style, both on the nose and on the palate, it's simply gorgeous. Gravensteiner apples, spice shop the gentle way, wet rocks and a hint of summer flowers and white peaches. Youthful on the palate as well with mouthwatering acidity and restrained cool fruit. Mostly green apples but a discrete hint of tropical fruits lure in the background. Again, the mineral feel. Long finish. Wines like Stefan Hajszan's Weissleiten ought to be an indicator for many wine producers, what a great food wine is all about. Bravo Stefan!

- Calabrese (1)
- Calheta (1)
- California (8)
- Calvert (1)
- Campania (1)
- Canon-Fronsac (1)
- Canterbury (1)
- Carcavelos (2)
- Carignan (1)
- Carlo Hauner (1)
- Carmenère (1)
- Carnuntum (1)
- Carricante (1)
- Casa Aranda (1)
- Castelao (1)
- Cataratto (1)
- Catena Zapata (2)
- Caves Alianca (1)
- Caves Vale do Rodo (1)
- Caves Velhas (1)
- Central Otago (1)
- Cephalonia (2)

RECOMMEND & FOLLOW

Gefällt mir 16 Personen gefällt.

Subscribe

Subscribe

DER WEINWEBER
GLUTER WEIN. GLUTER PREIS. SONST NIX.

